

About the Authors

Dr. Tilman KASTEN

Research associate and managing director at the Institut für Volkskunde der Deutschen des östlichen Europa (IVDE), Freiburg (Institute for Cultural Anthropology of the Germans of Eastern Europe). As part of teaching assignments, he gives seminars at the Institute for Cultural Anthropology and European Ethnology at the University of Freiburg. His work focuses on German-Czech relations, memory of the forced migration of the German-speaking population from Eastern Europe, and the press of German expellee organisations.

E-mail: tilman.kasten@ivde.bwl.de

Milena MEDOJEVIĆ

Ph.D. student at the Doctoral School of History and Ethnology, Ethnography and Cultural Anthropology in the University of Debrecen. She holds a BA in English Language and Literature. In 2017, she received a scholarship from the Russian Federation for master's studies in Russia. As a part of those studies, she spent a year in Moscow at the Pushkin State Russian Language Institute at the Preparatory Faculty. She holds an MA in International Literature and Culture with honourable, red diploma from the Saint-Petersburg State University. Since 2022, she's been a scholarship holder of the Stipendium Hungaricum program. Her fields of interest include folklore of the Slavic Peoples, mythology of the South Slavic Peoples, religion and paganism of the South Slavs, customs and folk beliefs of the South Slavs, and war history in the Balkans.

E-mail: milena.medojevic@gmail.com

Meng LIU

Ph.D. student at the Doctoral School of History and Ethnology at the University of Debrecen. Her research project focuses on studying the multiple aspects of educational anthropology, migration studies, and cultural memory. As a research project leader, Liu Meng has led an academic research project and received a national academic project grant. She has also participated in several academic conferences and has published articles in related ethnographic fields. Her academic interests include, but are not limited to, educational anthropology, cultural memory, migration studies, and cultural trauma.

E-mail: 283691501@qq.com

Eszter VALNERNÉ TÖRÖK

Instructor for German language at the University of Debrecen. She holds an MA in German Studies and Ethnography and has been working in the Institute of Business Communication and Professional Language Studies in the Faculty of Economics and Business at the University of Debrecen. She is responsible for skill-based specialised language courses and teaches German as a foreign language and Business German, with a 30-year teaching experience in higher education. Her main domains of academic interest include modern language teaching methods, bilingualism, intercultural and multicultural competences and intercultural communication. At present, she is a Ph.D. student in the Doctoral School of History and Ethnology at the University of Debrecen. Her doctoral research focuses on the questions of cultural integration in the Hungarian ethnic community living in Berlin. Her research interest lies in the areas of Hungarian diasporic studies, community based research, migration, integration, cultural identity and assimilation.

E-mail: torok.eszter@econ.unideb.hu

Julianna KOHUT-FERKI

Master of Arts in Ethnography, Ph.D. candidate of the Ethnography and Cultural Anthropology program of the Doctoral School of History and Ethnography at the University of Debrecen. Her research interest includes ethnic co-existence and situational border formation. From 2022 to 2023 she is a fellow of the Collegium Talentum program.

E-mail: ferki.julianna@gmail.com

Henriett SZABÓ Ph.D.

Ethnographic researcher, cultural and visual anthropologist, and documentarist at ELKH-DE Ethnographic Research Group. Her research interests are the cohabitation of Roma and Hungarian local societies, documentary filmmaking, sociocultural features of local community processes. As a mentor she contributes to the Roma students' integration at the University of Debrecen. She is a co-founder of AntRom documentary association, and she has initiated two series of documentaries ("Little Worlds", "Who We Are... and Why?") focusing on the Roma communities' integration issues in Hungary.

E-mail: szabo.henriett@arts.unideb.hu

Eszter ZOLTÁN-BORZOVÁN

Folklore researcher, currently she works at the local museum (Berey József Helytörténeti Gyűjtemény) in Nagyecsed, Hungary. In 2011, she obtained a pre-degree certificate at the Doctoral School of History and Ethnography of the University of Debrecen (Ethnography and Cultural Anthropology programme). Her main field of research is the history and ethnography of Nagyecsed. Her research project focuses on the characteristic features which determine this unique local identity, the so-called “Ecsed-ness”.

E-mail: borzovaneszter@gmail.com

Gyöngyi KORMÁNYOS KATONA

Hungarian literature and language teacher, certified cultural mediator from Serbia, and director of the Institute for Hungarian Culture in Vojvodina in Senta. She taught at the local Petőfi Sándor Elementary School and is also active in the field of talent support. She takes a particular interest in preserving native language, education in an ethnic minority’s native language and local culture in a multicultural environment. Currently she is a Ph.D. student at the Doctoral School of History and Ethnography of the Faculty of Humanities of the University of Debrecen. Her research interests are the role cultural heritage plays in reinforcing the sense of identity and the creation of social values in ethnic Hungarian communities of the Banat region of Vojvodina.

E-mail: kormanyosgyongyi23@gmail.com

Tymoteusz KRÓL

Anthropologist, sociolinguist and folklore researcher, assistant professor in Institute of Slavic Studies of Polish Academy of Sciences. Activist for revitalization of Wymysorys language. His research interests are Vilamovians, Wymysorys language, Cieszyn Silesia, borderlands, folk dress, nationalistic discourse, language ideologies and attitudes, language documentation and revitalization.

E-mail: wymysojer@gmail.com

Andreea BUZAȘ

Scientific researcher at the Institute of Social Sciences and Humanities Sibiu, editor-in-chief of the journal “Studies and communications of ethnology” (Sibiu), secretary of the Sibiu County Association of Folklorists and Ethnographers, and member of the Romanian Association of Ethnological Sciences and the Sibiu Research Association. She graduated from the Faculty of Letters and Arts of the “Lucian Blaga” University of Sibiu, specializing in Philology

(Romanian-French). She defended the Ph.D. thesis entitled The traditional village represented in the open-air Romanian ethnographical museums (supervisor Prof. Paul Niedermaier) at the “Lucian Blaga” University of Sibiu. She was a Ph.D. student in the POSDRU project “Harmonization of Romanian academic values with those of the European Community” (2010–2013). She completed documentation and specialization internships in Austria, Czechia, Denmark and Hungary (2012–2013). Her research interests are Romanian folklore archives, open-air ethnographic museums in Romania, rural and ecological tourism, and the folklore of the Saxons from Transylvania.

E-mail: buzasandreea@yahoo.com

Eszter LUPFER-JUHÁSZ

Assistant research fellow at the ELKH-DE Ethnology Research Group and Ph.D. student at the Doctoral School of History and Ethnography of the University of Debrecen. She graduated from the University of Debrecen as a teacher of History and Civics and teacher of Ethnography and Ethnology. Her doctoral research focuses on the relationship between education and ethnography. The research topic is the examination of the educational possibilities of topographical content in Ethnology. Her research also includes an assessment of the current Ethnography educational situation in primary school. Her research interest focuses on teaching ethnology, topographic content, landscape, and ethnographic landscapes.

E-mail: eszter.juhasz@arts.unideb.hu

Michael PROSSER-SHELL

Member of Scientific Staff at the Institut für Volkskunde der Deutschen des östlichen Europa, Freiburg, Germany. Since 2009, adjunct professor in Cultural Anthropology/ European Ethnology at Albert-Ludwigs-University, Freiburg. He has published several works on problems in feasts and festivals, oral and written traditions, religion and society (esp. pilgrimage), and interculturality. His research interest focuses on South-Western Germany, Hungary and Romania.

E-mail: michael.prosser@ivde.bwl.de

Dr. Nidhi MATHUR

Assistant professor of German Studies in Kurukshetra University, Kurukshetra, Haryana, India and Ph.D. awardee from the Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, India. She pursued her Bachelor Degree in German Studies from Doon University, Dehradun, Uttarakhand, India. She pursued her Master

Degree in German Studies from Doon University, Dehradun, Uttarakhand, India. She taught as assistant professor of German Studies in Amity University, Panchgaon, Manesar, Gurugram, Haryana, India. Her doctoral research focuses on German, Indian Folklore, contemporary German, English and Hindi Literature. She has participated in various community development projects, seminars, trainings, translation projects and round tables. Her research interest focuses on Human-Animal Studies.

E-mail: nidhimathur42@yahoo.com

Shailesh KUMAR RAY

Assistant professor of German Studies in Amity University, Panchgaon, Manesar, Gurugram, Haryana, India and doctoral candidate at the Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, India. He pursued his Master Degree in German Studies from Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, India. He also did his Bachelor's degree in German Studies in The English and Foreign Languages, Hyderabad, Telangana, India. His doctoral research focuses on science fiction on the contemporary German, English and Hindi Literature. He has participated in various community development projects, seminars, trainings and round tables. His research interest focuses on German philosophy.

E-mail: shailesh281289@gmail.com